

Welcome to Ultramarine

Greetings to you,
Ultramarine reader!

I hope everyone had a good Christmas and New Year. I have to say that I didn't really have a great break myself due to back injury and flu-like illness, the combination of which really knocked me back for a few weeks (my back is still throbbing as I write this!). New Year also saw my wife in hospital for several days. As a consequence, I haven't really done too much to my own tank over this period and I'm putting the planned update article back to next issue as a result. I have to say it's times like these when I'm glad that I incorporated automated systems, particularly the top-up, as I could barely get out of bed some days let alone think about tank maintenance.

We are getting back on track now though and get 2018 off and running with an issue packed with interesting and hopefully inspiring content! Of special note, just take a look at the fantastic reef that Mike and Tracey Hancock share with us this issue. If that's not enough to give you a healthy dose of Tang-envy, I don't know what is!

05 Marine News/Product News

12 Q+A

Blue Planet Aquarium Curator Dave Wolfenden answers your marine queries.

17 Close Look - Product Reviews

In this issue, we get hands-on with a bespoke tank cover from ReefTops and the Milwaukee MA887 Digital Seawater Refractometer.

24 Green Seas and Blue Carbon

Richard Aspinall dons wetsuit and once again slips seal-like into the watery realm; this time he's on a mission to illuminate us to the fascinating ecology of the flowering marine plants; the Mangroves and Seagrasses.

36 Handle with Care!

Chris Sergeant braves spikes, venom and fish with 'nasty big pointy teeth' to alert us to species in the hobby which have the potential to cause us personal harm. They may be beautiful but they ain't worth dying for!

46 West Side Story

Mike and Tracey Hancock from Bristol present their 'labour of love'... a stunning 1800 litre peninsula style reef system complete with a myriad of tangs, wrasses and more SPS varieties than you can shake a... er... stick at!

54 Social Reefing

Say apologies to Alexa, and sorry to Siri... there's no one better than veteran UK hobbyist Keith Moyle to fill the role of 'virtual assistant' as we cruise the information superhighway on a Grand Tour of reef-keeping in the social media age.

62 Definitive Guide to: Heating

Dave Wolfenden stays cool as a cucumber (a sea cucumber obviously) as he investigates the various water warming technologies we have at our disposal when it comes to sustaining tropical temperatures in our tanks.

68 Gardening in the Marine Aquarium

He's not sea-sick, but he's going green... Kenneth Wingarter cultivates our interest as he takes a close look at marine macroalgae with a view to creating your very own aquatic garden.

76 Close-up On Corals

James Fatherree focusses on the unmistakable Bubble corals in this issue with a taxonomic overview and information on how to keep these bubblicious beauties looking their best.
